With Mother's Day brunch around the bend, you'll want to get your reservation booked ASAP.

Sorry guys, but posting a social media pic with a heartfelt caption simply isn't enough.

From bubbly to Benedict, we've scouted the most noteworthy places in Vancouver that will be sure to pay tribute to all of the mothers in your life.

Thinking of where to plan a staycation for you and mom?

Nita Lake Lodge may be the most picturesque property to do just that away from the chaos of Vancouver's traffic and terrific drivers (queue sarcasm). Situated right next to a glassy alpine lake nestled within towering mountains, Nita Lake Lodge makes spoiling mom easy – especially with a Mother's Day Sunday brunch at their Aura Restaurant.

Highlights will include a carved roast beef, Belgian waffle station, and a variety of chilled seafood options such as a West Coast salmon platter, marinated clams, poached prawns, oysters, and mussels.

And if the thought of such a decadent buffet puts you in the most pleasant of food comas, Nita's proximity to countless miles of world-class outdoor activities should draw you to Whistler village to work off those haute cuisine calories.
