

A New Height of Glamour & Style

For Tiffany Masterpieces 2015, design director Francesca Amfitheatrof captures the moment when the stars come out and the New York City skyline rises to meet them. The designer celebrates this electrifying glamour with the world's most beautiful diamonds.

"I've focused on diamonds to create an extremely modern collection that is very clean and sculptural," Amfitheatrof comments.

A necklace and bracelet in 18 karat gold chains and rose-cut diamonds are finished with tassels inspired by luxurious 1940's-1960's fashion and the "Hollywood Regency" decorative style. One of the earliest diamond cuts, the rose cut features triangular faceting that leads the eye deep into the stone. Tiffany artisans mounted the diamonds in hexagonal patterns, creating layers of beautifully draping texture.

Amfitheatrof explored the Tiffany Archives for jewels of diamonds and platinum, the symbol of glamour throughout the jeweller's 178-year history. She achieves the same effortless beauty in earrings, pendants and bold, sculptural rings designed with mixed-cut diamonds - princess, square, baguette and round - in platinum.

The Tiffany Masterpieces 2015 designs are a celebration of diamonds in all their rarity and glamour, awash in pristine brilliance, with the elegance and strength that are quintessentially Tiffany.
