I am so excited to share this shoot we did with the magical, Tiffany & Co. Walking into the Vancouver, Tiffany & Co. store is like entering a little fairy tale, the way that everything sparkles catches both your eye and a piece of your heart at the same time. Danger zone for us and our significant others, right. It was an honor to have the chance to style their collections and make a Tiffany & Co. jewelry look very "me". I get asked a lot how to effortlessly stack jewelry, my response is always, mix your metals. Your jewelry look will look less matched and thus much more effortless. The beauty about Tiffany & Co. is that you can wear one special piece that will sparkle on its own or you mix and match your own jewelry with your special something from the little blue box. I gave Tiffany & Co. my own touch and fused some of my favorite pieces from two of my favorite collections Tiffany T and The Atlas Collection. This is where mixing metals comes into play, gold, silver and rose gold, is all fair game to wear at the same time and works effortlessly with each other. Add some pieces with diamonds and some without, I even added those beautiful sapphires within the necklace into the look for this. Another answer to the jewelry question is that your jewelry should be styled as a separate look that flows with your outfit and each completes each other. Jewelry is meant to be worn, so I like to make the most of my special pieces. Especially with the holidays approaching, take your special sparkles out of their boxes and wear them! Pair your most favorite special ring or bracelet with your favorite metals, skinny rings and other things. Without doubt something special and sparkly from Tiffany & Co. will be on my wish list this season. Photos by Allison Kuhl
