Halloween typically means costumes and candy, and while that certainly never gets old, there are some other options for going all-out for the devilish holiday. In fact, we found eight luxury hotels pulling out all the stops for Halloween this year — no tricks, just really great treats.

The Magnolia Hotel & Spa

If you really want to be startled, visit Victoria, the oldest city in the Pacific Northwest and reportedly the most haunted one in Canada's British Columbia. Let the Forbes Travel Guide Four-Star Magnolia Hotel curate your trip with the Spooktacular package. Aside from a luxe room and breakfast for two, the deal gives you access to the Spooktacular concierge, who is dedicated to ensuring you have a spine-tingling experience. He will have a list of haunted happenings around town, everything from ghost festivals to zombie walks, but also can send you on a self-guided haunted walking trail of the city's scariest spots (including the Parliament Buildings, where the ghost of murdered architect Francis Rattenbury supposedly roams).
