

Making the Case: B.C. Classics

Try some of the best wines the valleys have to offer
by TOM FIRTH posted Wed, Mar 16, 2016

Time after time, the wines of British Columbia impress with solid varietal character, balance, and food-friendliness. With the promise of spring nearing (notice I didn't say it's just around the corner), it's time to contemplate visiting wine country, taking road trips, or even ordering wine online.

This month, we wanted to share some excellent B.C. wines from wineries that have been on Alberta wine shelves and restaurant lists for a long time - classic and consistent producers with wines to seek out and taste.

Just a quick reminder: following each wine, we've included an approximate retail price and a CSPC code which can help you find which liquor stores may carry the product close to you (this can be done at liquorconnect.com).

Tinhorn Creek 2014 Gewürztraminer Okanagan Valley

A classic offering from Tinhorn Creek, the nose shows all those lychee and mandarin orange aromas, with a little fresh pear and spice. A little gooey on the palate with some residual sugar, it's easy, fresh, and tropical. Perfect for chilling out with a little chilled wine. Food-wise enjoy with Asian cuisine, fresh fish, or grilled poultry.
