After having had the privilege of dining at some very special places this year, it's difficult to choose just one. So, I'm going with two. The first is Wolf in the Fog, in Tofino, B.C. Everything I tasted at this hip, laid-back West Coast spot was exquisite and unique—from the Cedar Sour cocktail (with cedar-infused rye) and playful potato-crust oyster starter to the perfectly spiced Spanish Bombshell seafood entrée.

The second standout was Ox and Finch, in Glasgow's trendy Finnieston neighbourhood. I loved the feel of this place, with its urban-rustic decor and creative yet approachable (and affordable!) tapas-style menu. This spot is fine dining made accessible and fun. Be sure to try the braised pork cheeks with smoked polenta. Incredible. —Jill Foran, editor
